Konik was in his office at Strictly Fitness, on the phone, when the door burst open. In a bit of a fit, Slade Stevens entered.

“You need to explain yourself,” the Renegade was pacing.

“Can you hold on a second,” Konik spoke into the receiver before placing it in its cradle. He looked up at Stevens. “What’s the deal, pal?”

“Pal?” Slade’s eyes widened. “I thought we were pals until you screwed me in Bridgeview.”

Konik leaned back in his chair, rolling his eyes.

“Don’t give me that look,” Stevens set his jaw. “It was a fast count. Bobby paid you off.”

“You really don’t know me, do you?” Konik tried to be patient. “First, I called it straight. You’re buying into the Bitcoin propaganda. You see him splashing cash around and assume that I have a price, too. Second, you think I screwed you because I didn’t favor you. There’s a difference. You’re like a child who heard the word no and bawled about disrespect.”

Stevens stopped his pacing and glared at Konik. The Polish competitor rose to his feet while matching Slade’s gaze.

“Finally,” Konik said after a short staring contest. “I don’t like you. I signed some open contracts for some six man competition to help with the ring rust. We happen to be making a good run of it. But, that doesn’t mean I give half a damn about you. I don’t like your style. I especially don’t like what you did to Slobberknocker. That was bush league.”

“You think you’re going to just waltz back into the LWL and talk to me like this?” The Renegade spat back. “You act all high and mighty, but where’s the honor in hanging me out to dry? You may not have expected much when we teamed up, but we made it work. Where’s your respect for the titles? You owe me something. I made you relevant again.”

Konik circled around the front of the desk to stand nose to nose with his partner.

“I will honor my commitment as a six-man tag team champion. You’ll get me at 100% in the ring. But, you’ll get me 100 out here, too. I don’t have to like you to team with you. And I don’t have to pretend to like you. I’m the best wrestler in the world. And that’s all you’ll get out of me. I’m not your wingman. I’m not your henchman. I’m not your patsy. I’m Konik.”

“If you’re not careful,” Stevens gritted his teeth. “You’ll be my victim.”

“I think we’re done here. I have a phone call to get back to.”

“This is far from over, Konik.”

“See yourself out, Slade.”

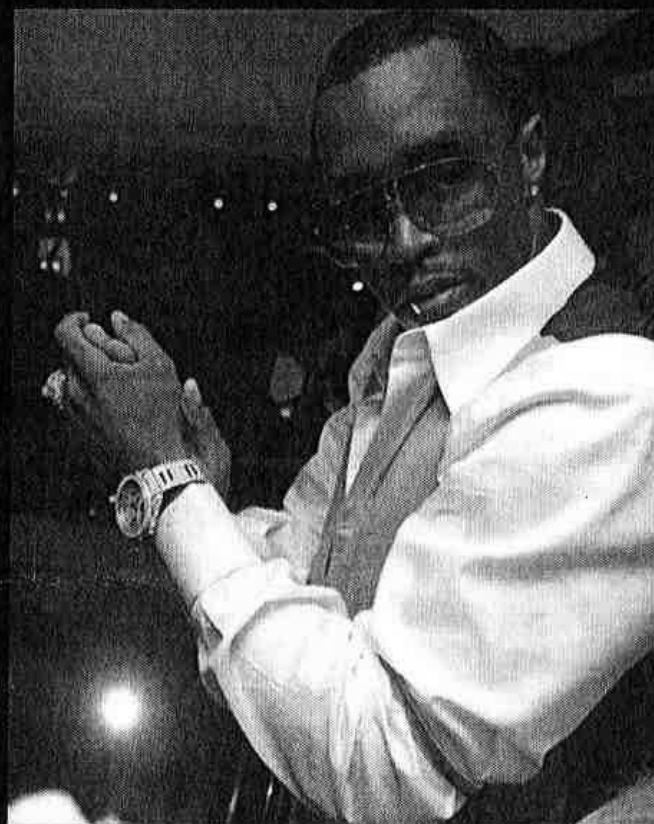

The Renegade gave one final look of disdain before he turned and made his way out of the office. Konik shook his head and sighed before he returned to his seat. He picked up the receiver.

“Sorry to keep you waiting. Now, what were you saying, Bobby?”

It seems that a fool that goes by the name Catfish Tim has called me out. First let me say I would love to dance with you brother but you have to know that this will not end good for you. See I don't doubt that you're a good wrestler but you have never been in the ring with the likes of me.

Clearly I think we need to have a street fight to get warmed up. Then we can have a strap match to get to know each other, and finally a steel cage match to finish the war! Three matches, three cycles, Best of three!

Hopefully the commissioner will sign these as TV matches so the masses can watch me dominate you all over the ring!

MY NAME IS NOBODY

The My Name is Nobody theme song comes on as Nobody comes out onto the stage with his new manager, Somebody.

Somebody: Ladies and Gentlemen, I'm as mad as hell, and we're not gonna take this anymore! Nobody is getting very tired of not winning titles! Nobody is a winner damnit!

The fans laugh as Nobody falls asleep standing up.

Somebody: They say, Nobody cares! I say, Nobody cares! They say, Nobody will win! I say, Nobody better win!

Nobody wakes up from his sleep and smiles at Somebody who looks at Nobody and smirks. They walk off into the sunset (which is shown on the big screen behind them.) Fans laugh and cheer.

Nobody's manager,

NOBODY

In Order To Live In Peace
We Must Always Be Ready For War

LWL, how do you defeat an opponent who simply does not quit? How do you defeat an opponent who does not feel pain? How do you defeat an opponent who does not bleed? You don't.

To everyone who calls out the Arsenal, you must always be able to back up what you say. In other words, LWL, you must always be able to respect your own limitations to be successful in the ring as well as in life. Heh, heh, heh. LWL, you can call me Arsenal.

Mordecai has his hand raised in victory when the lights suddenly go out. An eerie red glow slowly fills the ring to show Arsenal standing over Mordecai in the center of the ring. Arsenal pulls Mordecai off the mat, lifts him high in the air, and slams him back to the mat. The lights go out again, and when the light is restored, Mordecai still lies in the ring, but the Arsenal has disappeared into thin air.

Mike Roberts: "Arsenal, it looks like you're better than I thought. You sure do enjoy hurting others, and that makes you very dangerous. Unfortunately for you, I also enjoy hurting others. I feed off of the pain of my opponents, and I enjoy it so much! I want to hurt you, Arsenal, and I will make you bleed! You may have defeated me once, but you can't stop me from getting my hands on you! I will show you what pain is, and I will enjoy it!"

Renegade Slade Stevens was center ring boasting of his many exploits, none of which were really boast-worthy, including his recent attack on F. L. Slobberknocker. "BAD TO THE BONE" begins blasting over the speakers and Slobberknocker appears, taped ribs and all, at the top of the ramp. FLS begins walking down the ramp, albeit with a noticeable limp. Halfway down, he stops and reaches for something hidden along the barrier. It's his trademark sledgehammer! Slobberknocker's pace quickens as he once more heads toward the ring. At this point, Stevens, without either a weapon or the element of surprise, jumps from the ring and makes an escape through the stands. Slobberknocker steps through the ropes where he is handed a microphone. – "It's not like I expected anything more from you, Stevens. I've never made myself hard to find. Any time, any place. Don't expect me to be intimidated or afraid to fight! Last cycle was the first since I've been here that I wasn't on the title page. Don't get used to that. It seems some of the jackoffs that had the LWL falling on to hard times are slipping back in. Fly-by-night competitors, if you will, and maybe even tinkering with strats that don't belong to you. I guess it's time for me to say – what's next!"

The Real Man Billy Bratwurst walks to the LWL interview stage. Muskrat Joe... ah predicted ah was gonna put the finish on our series last cycle and ah went ahead and did it. I beat ya 3-1, but it was closer than the final score says. You are a helluva competitor, but you're not the real man!

Now ah hear that you and Crowdad Tim want a shot at myself and Slobberknocker? Well, let's get it on. We'll start our series next cycle – best of 5! Be prepared because me an ol' Slobberknocker have already proven we are the best tag team in this here LWL – William Bratwurst, but you can call me Billy.

I am Happy Anderson, I am a happy man. I am happy to compete in the LWL. I will be happy to challenge you when you challenge me, I am happy to team with you when you team with me. I would like a tag team partner the team would be called the happy team

A press conference concerning the upcoming Imperial Championship Tournament was about to begin when the entrance doors burst open. Reporters and cameramen were shoved aside by the angered LWL Champion Billionaire Bobby Bitcoin, wearing a mink coat and sunglasses, along with the diamond and gold Lone Wolf League championship belt draped over his shoulder. Half a dozen men in suits and carrying briefcases follow Mr. Bitcoin into the room and stand by his side.

Bobby Bitcoin: Commissioner Davis!! In case you've forgotten, I'm THE champion of the LWL! Not you (points at FL Slobberknocker), not you (points at Billy Bratwurst), not you (points at Slaughterdog Slash), and not you (points at Arsenal). That's right, ME. And I hear the tournament to crown the first ever LWL Imperial Champion is almost underway... and me, the LWL Champion Billionaire Bobby Bitcoin, isn't invited?!? Well, think again. My team of lawyers that stand before you are like myself, the best of the best. They've started the legal process and I'm sure that in a few days, you'll be reading a court order from a favorite Judge of mine. You'll either have to A: declare me the Imperial Champion outright, or B: enter me in the tournament and make me the #1 seed due to me being the LWL Champion, or C: after the tournament is over, and I mean as soon as the final match ends and the winner's hand is raised, I get the first match against the newly crowned champion, right then and there...(Bobby faces a camera): Last month, I showed up here and told you all what I was going to do. You laughed; you said Who Is This Guy, you blew me off, and yet here I stand before you as The Lone Wolf League Champion. And believe me, I'm just getting started. Billionaire Bobby Bitcoin, LWL Imperial Heavyweight Champion has a nice ring to it, doesn't it? (Bobby and his lawyers exit the room as cameras flash and reporters shout their questions towards the stunned Commissioner Davis and the four seated wrestlers).
